Andrew Badgerow is an adaptable, client-focused attorney who excels at providing personalized, strategic legal solutions in insurance defense.

With over a decade of legal experience, Andrew specializes in insurance defense with a focus on first and third-party no-fault and Personal Injury Protection (PIP) cases. Prior to joining Zausmer, he spent many years as an insurance defense attorney for a major insurer, where he developed a robust understanding of the nuances of insurance law and honed his strategic litigation skills.

Andrew is an integral member of the insurance defense team. He is known for his systematic approach to case management, which involves a comprehensive review to ensure all aspects are considered before litigation begins. His proactive planning and flexibility allow him to adjust strategies effectively as cases evolve.

Andrew remains calm under pressure. His serene demeanor helps maintain positive interactions with all parties, including opposing counsel. Whenever possible, he seeks a collaborative path to resolution. His experience as staff counsel for an insurance company imbued him with unique insights that enhance client relations, making him a formidable advocate in the courtroom.

Outside of his professional life, Andrew is a devoted family man who enjoys supporting his daughters' soccer activities, exploring new destinations with his family, and finding relaxation in cycling and golf.
