afawaz@zausmer.com

Athar Fawaz brings a meticulous, investigative approach to interpreting the law and a dedication to client-centered solutions.

Athar specializes in areas of law that demand a blend of investigative skills, legal acumen, and strategic thinking. With a background that includes both administration and litigation, she provides a comprehensive approach to tackling complex cases.

Athar offers an invaluable perspective shaped by her work for Judge Judith E. Levy in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan. There, she was involved with proceedings on a wide variety of issues such as the Flint Water Crisis and honed her skills in drafting legal opinions.

Known for her inquisitive nature and relentless pursuit of case details, Athar's approach ensures thorough review and due diligence. In client communications, her steadfast attention makes her a trusted advisor in legal disputes. A detail-oriented and proactive professional, Athar is an asset to both her clients and the Zausmer team.

Athar's external interests, including her ambition to run the Boston Marathon within two years, mirror her commitment to setting and achieving lofty goals. A lifelong tennis player and avid reader, Athar enjoys pursuits that foster both strategic thinking and imagination. These interests offer a balanced counterpoint to her legal career and complement her professional development.
