A tenacious advocate in no-fault law, Joshua Thomas champions his cases with a genuine connection to clients, an unwavering commitment to justice, and an intrinsic drive that pushes him to excellence.

Joshua Thomas steers his clients through complex cases with precision and a business-aligned insight. His track record boasts the representation of prominent insurance companies, well-known medical institutions, leading financial entities, and several renowned businesses. This experience underpins his reputation as a versatile and impactful attorney in his field.

Josh started his legal practice in no-fault law. Quickly establishing himself, he began representing a broad spectrum of individuals, predominantly in complex no-fault cases. Demonstrating his versatility, he later ventured into the domain of provider work. At Zausmer, Josh concentrates on insurance matters, drawing on his depth of experience and keen understanding of policy nuances to guide his clients effectively.

Among the standout moments of his career, Josh played an instrumental role in a federal lawsuit involving the Detroit Public Schools and a significant recovery case for State Farm Insurance. While these milestones showcase his legal acumen, what truly sets him apart is his dedication to his clients. His early days in plaintiff work shaped a deeply client-centric approach that emphasizes transparency, regular communication, and trust.

Outside the professional sphere, Josh is an avid sports enthusiast with a particular passion for football and basketball. He is also a drummer who performs at churches and events. His love for travel is evident in trips like his recent adventure to Alaska.
