Nathan Thomas combines expertise in Michigan law with a client-centric approach to deliver effective legal solutions.

Nathan Thomas has a wealth of legal knowledge and is committed to securing the best outcomes for his clients. Transitioning from a career in optical technology, he pursued his passion for law, earning his undergraduate degree in history from Oakland University and his law degree from Michigan State University College of Law.

In his practice, Nathan specializes in defending insurance companies and their insureds in no-fault and automobile negligence cases. His experience with various insurers has provided him insights into the subtleties of each, enabling him to customize his approach to each client's unique needs. Before joining Zausmer, P.C., Nathan gained significant courtroom experience and a deep appreciation for the complexities of Michigan law through diverse legal internships. His four-year tenure with an insurance carrier informs his understanding of industry challenges and client perspectives, enhancing his legal practice.

What truly sets Nathan apart as an attorney is his innate ability to connect with people. He prioritizes the establishment of genuine professional relationships with his clients, ensuring they feel comfortable and well-informed at every stage. This approach has helped Nathan build a base of clients who trust him and continue to seek his advice, underscoring his role as a trusted advocate.

Nathan is dedicated to his family and enjoys fishing trips with his kids. Other beloved pastimes include drawing, woodworking, DIY projects, and watching sports.
