

Darice Weber has secured defense verdicts in complex, high-exposure litigation for nearly 30 years, representing clients in malpractice, trucking, employment, and negligence matters.

Darice believes that every move in a case should accomplish something meaningful, whether in discovery, motion practice, settlement negotiations, or trial. Clients rely on her to identify strengths and risks and to develop a plan that positions the case for the best possible outcome without unnecessary litigation activity. She has secured defense verdicts, obtained dismissals in complex litigation, and handled appellate matters in state and federal courts, including the United States Supreme Court, the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, and the Michigan Supreme Court.

Darice's practice includes complex litigation involving legal malpractice, trucking and transportation claims, employment disputes, professional liability, and negligence defense. Her focus is on delivering value and directing case strategy from start to finish. Darice demonstrates command of both the facts and the law in the legal malpractice matters she handles. She also has extensive experience handling high-exposure trucking and automobile negligence matters and has won numerous jury trials involving weeks of testimony and trial work.

Darice views her clients as partners. Before shaping litigation strategy, she works to understand how each client's business or organization operates. She also strives to help clients learn from the immediate dispute to avoid similar issues in the future. Known for strong cross-examination and disciplined preparation, she is often called on to revise defense strategy, prepare key witnesses, and guide high-risk litigation approaching trial.

Darice earned her Juris Doctor from the University of Michigan Law School after completing a double major in mathematics and political science with highest honors at the University of Michigan–Dearborn. Early clerkships with Michigan Supreme Court Justice James H. Brickley and Justice Robert P. Griffin continue to shape her analytical approach and interest in appellate advocacy.

Outside the office, Darice supports animal rescue organizations, spends time with family, and enjoys community theatre with her sisters. She recently picked up the trumpet after years away from music and is also determined to return to competitive tennis.
